

Prof. Ochieng'-Odhiambo yesterday delivered a guest lecture at the Department of Philosophy and Religious Studies. In his presentation he observed that the number of students studying philosophy, the humanities and social sciences in general is dwindling worldwide. He therefore urged the Department to reinvent philosophy. While acknowledging the effort already made by the Department, he urged the promotion of applied philosophy and partnership between philosophy and the professional disciplines in offering joint degrees.